

Research Proposal Outline

Title:

Case Study on the Implementation of E-learning in Traditional Universities

Abstract

The abstract discusses the general view of the research title "the implementation of e-learning".

What is discussed in the essay on the implementation of E-learning and the various topics in the article (introduction, methodology, literature review, finding, discussion, conclusion)

Introduction:

In the introduction we have, a discussion about the background information about the implementation of e-learning, identification of the research problem and research question, research objectives, significance of the research, and perspectives

Methodology

The methodology section discusses the various methods used in the data collection, both the primary data source and the literature review. A discussion on the choice of research approach, data analysis, proof of the credibility of the findings, and the research scope.

Literature review:

In this section, we discuss previous research on the topics such as; E-learning, stages of e-learning implementation, E-learning compared to traditional classroom learning, the Drivers behind E-learning, and the barriers to achieving E-learning

Finding

The finding seeks to answer the research question, that is; the general attitude towards E-learning, E-learning implementation in Chinese Universities, and the purpose, drivers, and barriers of E-learning.

Discussion

The analysis discusses the above findings, that is the analysis of the general attitude towards the implementation of e-learning, the purpose for e-learning, and the drivers and barriers towards e-learning implementation.

Ethical consideration

The section explains that the research was conducted with consideration to the societal ethical code, also, with the questionnaire respondent consent.

Conclusion

This section is a summary of the research findings concerning answering the research question. It provides a suggestion for any future research, the research question, and objectives
